PENTACOST. . . .

Pentecost always takes place 50 days following Jesus's resurrection and 10 days following his heavenly ascension. Pentecost can occur any time between May 10 and June 13 because Easter is a flexible feast with no set date, and Pentecost depends on the timing of Easter.

Within the Christian faith, Pentecost commemorates the arrival of the Holy Spirit onto Mary, the Apostles, and the initial followers of Jesus as they were assembled in the Upper Room. They were in the chamber when a "strong, driving" wind blew through, causing tongues of fire to land on their heads and enabling them to communicate with each other in a variety of languages. Some believed the Christians were simply intoxicated because it was such an odd occurrence, but Peter clarified that it was only the morning and claimed that the Holy Spirit was the source of the phenomena.

Immediately following Pentecost, Peter, moved by the Holy Spirit, delivered his first homily to a mixed crowd of Jews and unbelievers. Drawing from the Old Testament, he explained how the prophet Joel had foretold the events leading up to Pentecost and how the Holy Spirit would arrive.

It "cut them to the heart" when he also revealed to the crowd that the Jesus they had crucified was the Lord and had risen from the grave. Peter urged them to confess their sins and get baptized when they inquired about what to do. Around 3,000 individuals were baptized after Peter's speech, according to the story in Acts.

Due to the fact that Peter, the first Pope, speaks for the first time and wins over thousands of new converts, Pentecost is regarded as the Church's birthday. For the first time, the apostles and believers were brought together by a shared language, as well as a shared desire and goal to spread the gospel.
